NEW EDITION

Who's Who in Finance and Industry, 1985-1986. 24th ed. Chicago: Marguis, 1985.

AC5.W45 1985-86 Ref.

Editors present comprehensive coverage of approximately 19,000 "North American and international professionals who are of current business reference interest." This volume includes executives from accounting, advertising, banking, finance, communications, construction, engineering, insurance, investment companies, retail trade, transportation, and other types of companies. In addition, the directory covers professionals in business-related fields, such as government agencies, stock exchanges, etc.

Candidates submit their own biographical data. This information is reviewed by the editiorial staff. This volume is a good source of information about executives who are not included in other sources.

DEPARTMENTS

3 Fast Forward
Early Warning on Emerging Trends From the Conference Board. By Randall Poe.

5 Commentary
Norman R. Augustine on "managers of the year" in business, government, and sports; two UCLA professors find that stressing team performance in industry—the "shared-fate" approach—has been overworked; Michael Dobbs on a mouse that menaced French civilization.

59 Books
David Nye goes for Victor Kiam's ebullient Going for It!; Warren Berry argues that a book about the downfall of Lehman Brothers places too much emphasis on personalities and not enough on market forces facing Wall Street firms.

64 The Compleat Manager
Running Out of Control. By Herbert Hubben.

ARTICLES

12 And a Harvard MBA Shall Lead Us/By Craig Mellow. Leadership, like lightning, is not easily caught in a bottle. But at the Harvard B-School, they're trying.

20 CEO: The Whole Man. A Computer Pioneer's Deals and Ideals/William C. Norris of Control Data Interviewed by David Finn.

30 To End the Raiding Roulette Game/By Peter F. Drucker. Fear of the raider demoralizes and paralyzes. Drucker discusses the causes of these destructive games and what we can do to protect the going concern against a hostile takeover.

40 Women in the Driver's Seat/By Carin Rubenstein. The race for the female car dollar is on. Which raises all sorts of questions about how women relate to cars—and how Detroit's auto-makers relate to women.

46 The 401(k) Krunch/By Dallas L. Salisbury. Born of a sleeper in the 1978 Revenue Act, the 401(k) plan just grew and grew and grew . . . into one of Americans' favorite tax benefits. Now, the Government seeks to clip its wings, against fierce opposition.

52 Down in the Import Dumps/By Marc Levinson. "Although the claims of dumping may provide relief for troubled companies—and fees for Washington's growing corps of trade lawyers—the economic case against dumping is hotly disputed."

AMERICA'S ★ MOST ★ VALUABLE ★ COMPANIES

A Profile of the Top 1000

46 THE TRUE BOTTOM LINE
How do you size up U. S. companies? It's hard to count the ways. But ranking by market value—the stock price multiplied by the number of shares outstanding—is the most useful for investors. It highlights rising stars—the sort of companies that don't show up on other lists. That's the measure BW chose, with some surprising results

NUMBER 2940 BusinessWeek APRIL 7, 1986

ON MAR. 21, WALL STREET PROS 'UNWOUND' THEIR ARBITRAGES, AND PANDEMONIUM BROKE LOOSE ON THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

Cover Story

32 WALL STREET'S BIG SWINGS
What's the new force behind the most powerful—and volatile—bull market in history? By most accounts, it's program trading. This complex game of arbitrage is played by an elite group of traders who use index futures and options to lock in profits. But does it help or hurt the average investor? Regulators, and Congress, are beginning to wonder

NOTE TO CONTRIBUTORS

The Canadian Journal of Economics is interested in publishing papers that are significant contributions to knowledge in all areas of economics, with the exception of extremely narrow papers addressed to small specialist audiences.

Manuscript submissions and all correspondence relating to the contents of the JOURNAL should be sent to the Managing Editor, Canadian Journal of Economics, Department of Economics, University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario N6A 5C2. Manuscripts should be sent in four copies. Detailed style guidelines are available to authors on request.

Authors who are not members of the Canadian Economics Association must enclose with the manuscript either a submission fee of $34 Canadian or a membership fee on the terms indicated on the inside front cover, as applicable.

NOTE AUX AUTEURS

La Revue canadienne d'Economique invite les auteurs à lui soumettre les articles qui marquent un progrès significatif des connaissances dans tous les différentes domaines de l'économie, à l'exception des articles très étroits qui s'adressent à des groupes restreints de spécialistes.

Les manuscrits et toute correspondance ayant trait à la rédaction de la REVUE doivent être adressés au Directeur, Revue canadienne d'Economique, Department of Economics, University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario N6A 5C2. Les manuscrits doivent être soumis en quatre exemplaires. Un guide de style détaillé est mis à la disposition des auteurs sur demande.

Les auteurs qui ne sont pas membres de l'Association canadienne d'Economique doivent inclure avec leur manuscrit, soit un montant de $34 (canadiens) leur donnant le droit de soumettre un manuscrit, soit le montant de la cotisation à l'Association tel qu'indiqué au verso de la page couverture de la REVUE.

International Monetary Fund, 1972–1978
Cooperation on Trial
by Margaret Garritsen de Vries
(Volumes I and II, Narrative and Analysis, Volume III, Documents)

This new history, the third in a series, recounts the Fund's evolution in the turbulent years since the Smithsonian Agreement of December 1971. It describes the collapse of the par value system and the negotiations for reform as the Fund diversified its activities, increased its lending, amended its Articles of Agreement, and undertook to supervise the evolving system in a world of double-digit inflation, higher oil prices, unprecedented payments difficulties, slower growth, and continued floating exchange rates for the major currencies.

The Historian (an experienced staff member of the Fund) supports her interpretation of these events by documents — many of them previously unpublished — and by interviews with major participants.

Liberalizing Trade Between Developed and Developing Countries—Bela Balassa and Constantine Michalopoulos page 3

Trade between developed and developing countries will need to be an important focus of the new round of multilateral negotiations. This is both because of the growing importance of this trade and because of the present costs imposed by protection on the economies of the two groups. This article considers the scope, content and modalities of such negotiations.

The Caribbean Basin Economic Recovery Act: A New Type of Preference in GATT?—Wolfgang Benedek page 29

The CBERA grants non-reciprocal duty-free access for most exports from the Caribbean Basin to the United States under a waiver granted by the GATT. How this relates to GATT's existing provisions for developing countries, and its implications for the future are assessed in this article.

Latin America and the US Trade and Tariff Act—Miguel Rodríguez Mendoza page 47

The Trade and Tariff Act of 1984 has important implications for the multilateral trading system in general and for the trade of developing countries in particular. Its implications for the commercial interests of Latin America are examined in this article.

Fair Labor Standards and International Trade—Steve Charnovitz page 61

Recent US legislation has established new labor standards for developing countries wanting to qualify for trade preferences. These new standards could lead to far reaching changes in trade practices and development patterns in the future.

State Responsibility and Bilateral Investment Treaties—
M. Sornarajah page 79

Bilateral investment treaties between states have proliferated in recent years. This article explores the reasons for the increasing number of such treaties, examines their new techniques for investor protection and assesses their impact on principles of international law.

Shorter Articles and Notes

The Proliferation of Nuclear Reactors—
Ursula Wassermann page 99

According to the International Atomic Energy Agency, seventeen nuclear reactors were in operation in developing countries at the end of 1984 and nineteen more under construction. This article takes a closer look at the evolution of the transfer of nuclear technology.

Reflections on the Security of Small Island Countries—Edward Dommen page 110

This article considers the external security of island countries under the following four headings: the polity, the economy, the environment and the territory.

IMF–World Bank Annual Ministerial Meeting 1985—A. F. Ewing page 118

Against a cloudy background of the slow economic recovery, continuing debt problems and creeping protectionism some important decisions were taken at the annual Ministerial meeting of the IMF–World Bank in Seoul in October 1985.

UNCITRAL 1985 page 119

The 1985 session of the UN Commission for International Trade Law, was largely devoted to the agreement on the Model Law on International Commercial Arbitration.

FEATURES

23 The Austrian tradition means neutrality is an advantage

Austria's bankers and traders have used neutrality as a weapon of trade. Austria survey from page 23.

On page 25. Why Austria sold a slice of VOEST-Alpine Intertrading (VAIT). VAIT is alive still but the impetus is coming from foreign shareholders

On page 29. Austrian export finance weathers the storm. The Austrian system has been envied by competitors for 25 years. But what is changing?

On page 33. Café society is alive and well for Vienna's traders. Austria's countertraders can live together easily.

Survey by Alex Ferguson from Vienna and Linz.

35 Leasing: playing the great Asian tax game

Asian leasing is increasingly a question of looking for tax loopholes. Some specialists are good at finding them.

On page 37. Decision time comes ever closer for Japan's leasing companies. The only route to expansion leads abroad.

On page 39. An uncertain future beckons for Hong Kong's leasing companies. New legislation could change Hong Kong leasing – for the worse.

On page 40. China taxes the best brains in Asian leasing. Cracking the biggest market is tough.

On page 42. When two or more lessors gather together, tales of woe are usually heard. Asian leasing companies met in Jakarta last month.

Survey by Jamie Robertson from Hong Kong.

43 Giving a bond: your life in their hands

Exporters cannot avoid giving bonds. But they can avoid some of the problems. By Dominic Mills.

On page 44. Negotiating a smooth course through the bonding business. The secret is to keep commitments under control. By Sandy Trodden.

47 What lower oil prices mean for the Gulf states

The Gulf states have to shift their economies. But business and supplier confidence is already falling. By American Express Bank Economics Unit.

49 Law and the importance of being final

IMPORTANT REFERENCE TOOL

Fed-Track Guide to Antidumping Findings. Washington, D.C.: Fed-Track Publications, 1983- 2v. (Loose-leaf)

HF 1425.F3 Ref.

This GUIDE is designed to supply the user with all pertinent references necessary to research an antidumping order or to trace the development of an antidumping investigation currently in progress. It covers actions of the following agencies: Department of the Treasury, Bureau of Customs; Department of Commerce, International Trade Administration (ITA); and the U.S. International Trade Commission (ITC). The GUIDE also provides access to a body of precedents in antidumping cases.

The publication covers the history of antidumping cases. It follows each action through the latest administrative review, or until termination. Special features include: Index of International Trade Commission Investigation Numbers and Related Report Numbers; Alphabetical List of Countries of Origin of Commodities; Alphabetical List of Commodities Covered in Case Histories; and Consolidated List of Antidumping Orders Currently in Effect. A new feature is the list of case histories that cite court involvement.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

The Cover—Jeffrey Schrier's collage celebrates 70 years of Conference Board and American business history.

DEPARTMENTS

1 The President's Letter 'Helping Business Decide, Helping Society Understand.' By James T. Mills.

5 Fast Forward Early Warning on Emerging Trends From the Conference Board. By Randall Poe.

7 Commentary Roger B. Smith on the value of liberal-arts studies to auto-making.

65 Quiz Business Memorabilia: A History Test. By Heather Mee.

71 Capital Debate Roger M. Kubarych on an improbable issue in American politics: world monetary reform.

76 Books Richard J. Margolis reviews an official history of Time Inc. together with a recent book on a Time of troubles.

80 The Compleat Manager Getting the Real Story. By Herbert Hubben.

ARTICLES

12 Why Companies Can't Afford to Ignore the Past/By George David Smith. "The time is ripe for a more professional approach to the writing of corporate history."

24 Managerial Roots: How the Heirs of Sloan and du Pont Are Faring/Alfred D. Chandler Jr. of the Harvard Business School Interviewed by Delos R. Smith.

36 1916: The Year of Living Dangerously /By Steven Markman. Woodrow Wilson had "kept us out of war." The nation was enjoying unprecedented prosperity. But we could not, for long, remain aloof from the storm beyond our shores. And at home, American capitalism had reached a turning point.

46 What Business Needed to Know /By John Hein. War and peace, depression and inflation, antitrust, alcoholism, what to do if an A-bomb falls—the great and small issues that preoccupied management over the past seven decades as seen in the record of Conference Board research.

54 Better Corporate Citizens: The Path to Social Responsibility/By Joseph Nolan and David Nolan. Over seven decades, four types of business leaders have blazed the trail: the visionaries, the improvisers, the reluctant compliers, and the initiative-takers of today. But there have also been backsliders.

60 The Business Landscape in 2001 /By Murray L. Weidenbaum. Critics of free enterprise have underestimated its powerful adaptive capability. Three major forces are reshaping the business landscape and should assure vigorous growth in the new century.

MICHEL BERGERAC DIDN'T MAKE THE TOP 10. BUT HE'S NOT WORRIED. HE PICKED UP $35 MILLION WHEN HE BAILED OUT OF REVLON

Cover Story

48 EXECUTIVE PAY
And the winner for 1985 is: Victor Posner, the reclusive millionaire. But his $12.7 million—a mere half of what 1984's winner took home—isn't the big story. Executives' salary and bonus grew only 9%, to $679,000. But a 37% hike in the use of stock options raised average total pay to $1.2 million. Incentives are now the name of the compensation game

INFLATED HOPES: AT&T IS PROMOTING ITSELF AS A HIGH-TECH POWERHOUSE—BUT TO MOST PEOPLE IT'S STILL JUST THE PHONE COMPANY

Cover Story

88 WHY AT&T ISN'T CLICKING
Two years after the Bell breakup, AT&T is ringing up big profits in long distance—while its flashier new businesses are stuck in the mud. Confused marketing, bad timing, and stodgy management are all to blame. These problems are being attacked one by one. But it's becoming clear that turning AT&T into a leading-edge Information Age company will take years—if it can be done at all

Reform of the United Nations
—A. F. Ewing page 131

A comprehensive and outspoken report on the reform of the United Nations was prepared for the occasion of the fortieth anniversary of its founding. This article outlines the substantive issues of that report namely, defects of management or of structure, nature and role of the world organization, principal objectives pursued and potential areas of reform

Liberalizing the Multi Fibre Arrangement—K. A. Koekkoek and L. B. M. Mennes page 142

The current Multi Fibre Arrangement—MFA III—expires at the end of July this year. Preparatory negotiations for its successor have already begun. Whatever form that will take depends not only on governments past experience of the MFA but also on the degree of adjustment achieved in the industry as well as the impact of governments' wider industrial policies. This article looks at the situation in the EEC in general and the Netherlands in particular.

European Community Imports of VCRs from Japan—Brian Hindley page 168

In February 1983 the first voluntary export restraint (VER) between the European Community, as such, and Japan came into existence as a result of the so-called Tokyo Meeting. This article examines the economic consequences of that VER, its significance as a precedent and the lessons it holds for the future conduct of European Community trade policy.

Improving GATT Rules for Nonmarket Economies—Eliza R. Patterson page 185

In view of China's expressed wish to seek to reaffiliate with the GATT, there is now an urgent need to examine the rules governing trade between market and nonmarket economies. The general guidelines that presently exist need to be supplemented by provisions addressed to the substantive issues which so far have not been adequately dealt with. These issues are discussed in this article.

Consumer Protection and the United Nations
—Patrizio Merciai page 206

The United Nations Guidelines for Consumer Protection, adopted in April 1985, reflect the increasing recognition of consumers' rights in industrialized countries and the growing need for better consumer protection in third world countries. This article addresses the importance of the U.N. Guidelines as a new type of international regulations in this field.

Shorter Articles and Notes

Tin and other Commodities in Crisis
—Ursula Wassermann page 232

The recent crisis of the International Tin Council and the break up of the OPEC cartel are symptomatic of the deep-seated problems in commodity markets.

Trade and Development in Asia
—Badar A. Iqbal page 236

While parts of Asia now rank among the most dynamic economic regions of the world there are still great disparities existing. This article examines the interaction between trade and development for 13 Asian countries.

East-West Trade—A. F. Ewing page 241

The ECE Bulletin for 1985 shows the recent developments in East-West trade: a growing volume of imports by the Eastern European countries and their falling volume of exports. In addition, the Bulletin examines long term changes in the intensity of East-West trade, 1955–1984.

COVER STORY

23 Starting over: the private market is back in business

Private market insurers have rediscoverd their confidence. Fresh capacity is coming onstream and it is now a seller's market.

On page 26. The private market: what the brokers really think about it.

On page 28. The cool Swede taking the reins at PanFinancial.

On page 31. It's been hard, but Lloyd's is steady now. By Barnabas Hurst-Bannister of the Merrett Syndicate.

On page 34. The consumer view of the private market. Interviews with European and US corporate users of the private market.

Survey by Dominic Mills.

35 Eastern Europe: they know what they like and they like what they know

East European borrowers are conservative when it comes to trade finance. But the clever deals can be done. By James Ball.

On page 38. Borrow while you can: East European loans 1985-1986.

On page 39. How thick is Eastern Europe's wallet? Economies profiled by Csaba Körtvélyessy of Die Erste österreichische Sparkasse.

On page 41. Meeting Soviet taste in export credits. By John Grant of Morgan Grenfell.

43 Netherlands: exporters look for the easy markets

On page 44. Guilder game gives Dutch banks a start. Local banks dominate, but foreign banks and factors are trying.

On page 45. Dutch to crank up low key export finance approach. The free market approach may be changed.

Survey by Jane Morrison from Amsterdam and Rotterdam

47 Israel: trade finance and the siege economy

Israel has to keep trading. But it needs new markets.

On page 47. How Scitex dodges the Israel factor.

On page 48. State schemes shackle exporters.
